Chapter 13, Part IV. For many years now I've kept this book out handy, and I read a letter at a time -- okay, sometimes a half dozen or more -- whenever the mood hits me. Flannery O'Connor was born in Savannah, Georgia, in 1925. It becomes clear during the course of these that she was a middle class woman. In a series of letters over ten The Habit of Being time to a woman identified as only "A. There is nothing like being please with your own efforts - and this is the best stage - before it is published and b It took a year and a half of dipping in and out for me to finish . I only know I believe in the complete chicken. In her letters to her friends I learned a lot about writing, the Catholic faith, and living a full life under difficult circumstances. Possibly my favorite book ever
