The writing was solid in this book! Among them, of course, is Major Franklin Trapper, along with a slimy untrustworthy lawyer, and the SEEING RED Texas Rangers, the FBI and local SEEING RED, all of whom are involved in the search for the possible suspects and the truth of what happened the day the bombing occurred. I did not connect with any of the characters.

John Trapper acts as a guard for Kerra in case the shooters discover that she's... But ex-ATF agent, John Trapper wants nothing to do with his father, or any media concerning the bombing. Still seething over his break with both the ATF and his father, John Trapper wants no association with the hotel bombing or his hero father, and spurns the meddling reporters determined to drag them back into the limelight. There were a few nice twists and turns, but not enough SEEING RED keep me furiously turning pages SEEING RED anticipation of what was going to happen. A bombing at the Pegasus Hotel in Dallas 25 years ago forever changes the lives... the interview results in a shocking event Trapper steps in and kidnaps Kerra - for her own good of course. It was the perfect novel for a rainy afternoon, for a sunny day at the beach, or SEEING RED a lazy day in bed.
