He is in earnest with them when he urges them to admit of his salutary medicines. All of us have corrupted natures ready to be inflamed Jer In their own hands it becomes a sword to slay its owner; and can they anticipate comfort in that ill-gotten wealth which has proved fatal to its honest possessor? Donotdeviseharmagainstyourneighbor,Whilehelivesinsecuritybesideyou In the calling wherewith we are called, let us abide with God, and we shall dwell in safety under the shadow of the Almighty. When we owe money to our neighbours, which they require from us at present, and we, though able, defer payment till afterwards, we are plainly guilty of injustice; for a man has the same right to his property now, that he will have a year. But great as are the advantages, splendid as are the honours which wisdom confers, the world is generally prejudised against it, and prepossessed with the idea of its being burdensome and unpleasant.
