Getting started with solid foods Always stay with your baby when they are eating in case they start to choke. Try to keep it to a minimum. We were unable to find this edition in any bookshop we are able to search.

Goats' milk formula is available and produced to the same nutritional standards

Here are some tips on the different sorts of food to offer your child, plus a few that it's best to avoid. It's best not to give them foods or drinks with added sugar, or salty or fatty food either, as this will make them more likely to want them as they get older. Energy Young children need lots of energy to grow and develop.

If your baby already has a known allergy, such as a diagnosed food allergy or eczema, these are chemically different from the long chain omega-3 fatty acids found in oily fish. Once your baby is ready for solids, give them these foods in very small amounts and watch carefully for any symptoms of an allergic reaction.
